The reason I believe Dr. John Morrow is the perfect nominee is because not only did he make his lectures captivating and interesting but he went out of his way to welcome us to London. He has made several videos of places we could visit around the city by physically going there and showing us. Additionally, his introduction video to the module was very original and amusing and his lectures were just as creative and fun to watch which I believe has motivated us more to keep up with the module's content. When London went into lockdown in November, he organised a photography contest to keep us entertained. So far, I have had no other academic member of staff do this much or even come close to Dr. John Morrow's countless efforts at interacting with us, delivering exceptional lectures and welcoming us to a new city. All my colleagues would agree that he is one of the, if not the, best academic member of staff.

This has been a very hard year and I am aware that most teachers did the best they could to provide us with the best teaching experience online. I nominated John Morrow because, of all my professors, I feel like he made the greatest effort to make sure that we felt happy and motivated during lockdown.
